The company had its first harvest in December in the same year.

In 2017 the company went through the process of family succession, when Andreia Cosi became part of the company's, bringing a new concept, innovation of varieties and product new presentation. In this transition, the company incorporated the new name of GIARDINO DI COSI, which refers to the family's Italian origins, with Giardino ("garden" in Italian) and Cosi being the family's last name.
